Boyden, the Pride of All

Preface

As the Old South paved the way for the new and better South, so we, the Seniors of 1952, have worked to pave the way for a new and better Boyden. As the Old South symbolizes the very highest of ideals and standards, so the old Southern characters portrayed in this book symbolize the high ideals and standards of Boyden.

It is with great pride and pleasure that we, the Echo staff of 1952, present our most cherished memories of "Boyden, the Pride of All the South."

In Memoriam

WILLIAM GORDON BARNES

Though he is gone, yet he does still remain.
We still remember his tall lanky frame.
We still can see his eyes of clearest blue.
And who could forget his heart so true?
We miss so much his quiet charm,
And the way he used his pitching arm.
His words were few, but ever good.
We knew when he said he would, he would.
Yes, he is gone, yet he is ever near,
Within our hearts he's held forever dear.
And we know, after seeing his each endeavor,
He will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

DEVONA MILLER

We are proud to have Devona Miller as a member of our graduating class. Devona finished the seventh grade at Henderson School. At this point her public education was halted by polio. For the past four years she has taken a commercial course from two private teachers, Miss Jessie Lawrence and Mrs. Vivian McCall Boyd. Her scholastic record has been outstanding. She is planning to continue her studies at Catawba College.

Devona, our sincere best wishes go with you always.

As we leave Boyden, we think not only of the tangible things in this book, but also of those intangible things which cannot be pictured — the fellowship, the love, the honor, the ideals and standards — which have done so much to endear this school to us. We leave with the hope that her sons and daughters of the future will strive, as we have, to keep Boyden forever "THE PRIDE OF ALL THE SOUTH."
